What's this all about?

Join us for a one-day clinic that delivers the fundamental concepts and skills needed to trim a healthy, well-maintained hoof using a rasp and a hoof stand, and to check hoof balance using the sole as a guide. Auditors participate fully in classroom activities and hoof trimming demo, and observe during the hands-on trimming session.

What to wear and bring:

Wear work pants or jeans and sturdy shoes. The hands-on hoof trimming session will involve sharp tools and dirty, smelly, stomping hoofs, so your clothes and shoes may get dirty or torn. No shorts or sandals, please – closed-toe shoes required for safety.

Bring a folding chair, notebook, pen, camera. Other classroom materials will be provided. Take all the photos and video you like!

For participation in the hands-on trimming session:

Close-fitting work gloves and a hoof rasp with handle are required. Bring a hoof stand if you have one. Work gloves, professional quality hoof rasps, and rasp handles will be available for purchase at the clinic. Flip to the last page of this document for a list of other recommended tools, gear, and suppliers.

Lunch and Drinks:

Lunch and hot and cold beverages will be provided and are included in price of admission for both participants and auditors. If you'd like to bring food to share, snacks that don't need refrigeration and that might double as dessert (muffins, cookies, brownies, bagels) are always appreciated!

If you plan to participate in the hands-on trimming, but won't be bringing a horse:

Please let us know in advance that you are planning to participate in the hands-on hoof trimming session, but will not be bringing a horse – so that we can arrange to have a practice horse available.

If you plan to bring your horse (or mule or donkey):

Please let us know in advance that you are planning to bring your horse, so we can prepare to comfortably accommodate him (or her).

Current negative Coggins for each visiting horse must be submitted with clinic registration forms or presented for inspection before unloading horse from trailer – no exceptions.

Plan to arrive 15 minutes early to check in and get your horse settled. Let us help direct you to trailer parking and turnaround.

Please bring your own water bucket and hay from home.

No stallions, ungelded colts, mares with foals at side, or fractious or unhandled horses.

This and that:

No visiting dogs, please. No smoking in the barn area or covered arena. Smoking is allowed on the opposite side of the gravel drive from the barn and covered arena.

Clinic participants and auditors must observe posted barn rules of Cash Point Equine Center.

The bathroom is located in the barn below the house, through the door halfway along the wall to your right as you enter the main doorway of the barn.

Inclement weather:

All activities will be under cover inside the barn and covered arena at Cash Point Quarter Horses - the clinic will take place rain or shine. If winter weather threatens, the clinic may be rescheduled – please check hoofsmart.com at 7am on clinic day.

Can I really learn to do this?

Hoof trimming isn't rocket science. Performing a basic trim on healthy, well-maintained hoofs is within the capabilities of virtually everyone with a desire to learn, the proper tools, some horse-handling skills, and a cooperative equine partner.

Some physical stamina and strength is helpful, but many a determined trimmer has used innovative tools and techniques to overcome physical barriers such as arthritis, back problems, and limited mobility.

A motivated owner can often provide higher quality hoof care than a professional who only sees the horse every 4-6 weeks. An owner can tweak and fine-tune a horse's hoofs through day-to-day observation, attention to detail, and knowledge of every quirk under saddle and over varying terrain.

There's quite a difference between having the satisfying ability to tidy up the hoofs of one or two personal horses any time you please, and the demands of having to safely deal with many horses with a range of temperaments, performance and rehabilitation goals, and current and future problems to consider. You can learn the basics in a day, and then spend the rest of your life broadening your experience, deepening your understanding of anatomy and biomechanics, mastering new tools and techniques, and keeping up-to-date with advances in research and diagnostic tools. Welcome to the journey!

What's the general plan for the day?

- classroom time with a mix of learning activities and interactive demos
- lunch break
- hoof trimming demonstration with Q&A
- hands-on practice – trim at least one hoof from start to finish

What we will cover during the classroom and demo sessions:

Basic procedure and techniques for trimming the hoof wall using a hoof rasp and hoof stand, including:

Hoof anatomy inside and out	Backing up the toe
How often to trim	Scooping the quarters
Splits, cracks, and flares	Beveling or rolling the hoof wall
Safety	Checking your work
Tool tips and techniques	Balancing the hoof

Intermediate-level (102) clinics may cover additional topics as requested:

Trimming diseased or problem hoofs – contraction, navicular syndrome, founder, long toe with under-run heels, underdeveloped digital cushion, thin sole

Trimming bars, sole, and frog

Trimming with hoof nippers, hoof knives, and angle grinders

How to get the most out of the clinic:

Take notes and ask questions! The more you put into the learning experience, the more you'll take away from it. Plus, you never know when someone who speaks up with a question or observation might get a fun little prize for bravery!

Take time before and after the clinic to study the videos, articles, photos, and drawings about hoof trimming and hoof health, available for free on the following websites:
